NATIONAL ITCH
FOUNDATION

Dear Industry Professionals and Partners,

We are at a pivotal moment in the field of itch research. Over the past decade, scientific advances have deepened our understanding of the mechanisms that drive chronic itch and opened new doors for innovative, effective treatments. Yet, there remains a critical need for continued collaboration among researchers, clinicians, and industry leaders to translate these discoveries into meaningful relief for patients across the United States.

The National Itch Foundation (NIF) was established to meet that need — to unite experts across disciplines, accelerate progress, and raise national awareness of the importance of itch research. As part of this mission, we are proud to host the first National Itch Summit, taking place November 6–7, 2026, in Miami, Florida. This inaugural event will bring together leading scientists, clinicians, and industry professionals from across the country to share the latest research, explore emerging therapies, and foster collaboration that will shape the future of itch management.

We invite you to join us as a sponsor and partner in this event. Your participation offers a unique opportunity to engage directly with healthcare professionals and researchers at the forefront of this evolving field, while demonstrating your organization’s commitment to advancing patient care and scientific innovation.

Together, we can make the inaugural National Itch Summit a defining moment in the advancement of itch research — and lay the groundwork for lasting progress in the years ahead.
